DISCOVER ROSSLARE'S RICH HERITAGE:

- ❖ Commodore John Barry, the 'Father of the American Navy,' lived in Rosslare before setting off on his arduous journey at sea.
- ❖ The pure spring water of St Brioc's Well is said to have great healing powers of the eyes.
- ❖ St Brioc's original church was ravaged by Cromwell's troops, who subsequently marched many of Rosslare Fort's residents to the sand dunes where they were slaughtered. This area (opposite the car park) is since known as the 'murder hole.'
- ❖ Withstanding evictions and hardship, the 'lost village' of Rosslare Fort was claimed by the sea in 1925 but can still be seen at low tides at the furthest point of 'The Burrow.'
- ❖ 'Rosslare Tigers' were the first ever Co Wexford GAA champions in 1886, just after the Gaelic Athletic Association was founded in November 1884.
- ❖ Guglielmo Marconi selected Rosslare as a base for the establishment of the first East Coast Wireless Transmitting Station, c.1902.
- ❖ Rosslare's stretch of beach was a track for horse racing in earlier years and there was motor racing on the strand in 1913.

- ❖ For more information on Rosslare's maritime and rural history, visit the James Stevens Museum at Scoil Mhuire National School (open each Sunday after 10am mass during July and August) or arrange a walking tour with Mr Seamus Molloy and Mr Gerry Breen, (053) 9122663.
